

Localization for Small Brands

What changes when your website or app enters another culture.

Localization is not just translating your site. It is adapting the experience so it feels native. For a small brand, a focused checklist prevents the most common mistakes.

What changes when you localize

Area	What to adapt
Copy	Tone, idioms, calls to action and persuasion.
Formats	Dates, times, numbers, currency and units.
Layout	Text expansion (DE/FR longer), right-to-left for AR/HE.
Images	Culturally appropriate visuals and examples.
SEO	Local keywords, not a literal keyword translation.
Legal	Local consent, privacy and contact expectations.

Small-brand checklist

- Decide the 1-2 markets that matter most before translating everything.
- Localize the homepage, pricing and checkout first - they convert.
- Test buttons and menus for text length in each language.
- Use local currency and date formats automatically.
- Have a native speaker review tone before launch.

RESUMEN EN ESPAÑOL

Localizar no es solo traducir: es adaptar la experiencia (copy, formatos, diseño, imágenes, SEO y aspectos legales) para que tu web o app se sienta nativa. Empieza por 1-2 mercados y por las páginas que convierten.

Workshop guide published by Scriptorium for educational purposes.

Scriptorium • Languages • Texts • Documentation • scriptorium-language-studio • josuepug@gmail.com